

Rule 27. Order of dismissal.

If the commission determines either that the charges against the respondent have not been proved by clear and convincing evidence, or that discipline is not warranted in light of facts made to appear in mitigation or avoidance, it shall forthwith prepare and file its order publicly dismissing the charges against the respondent. Any sitting member of the commission who does not agree with the order, which has been approved by other commission members, must be allowed 10 days in which to prepare and sign a concurring or dissenting opinion. All orders and opinions shall be concurrently filed.
